

How are territorial strategies built?

Mari Jose Aranguren
Research Director

In order to build a territorial strategy you need to develop a shared vision on three critical issues. The first one is what for. What are the strategic objectives to be pursued in the economic, social and environmental fields? The second one is what. What economic and scientific-technological activities are to be fostered and what assets need to be developed in each one of them? Moreover, what are the critical connections needed both outside and inside the territory in order to foster those activities? The third one is made up of how and who. Here social capital and shared leaderships become critical. A shared vision on these three issues is the key to building a territorial strategy that delivers wellbeing to society with the participation of all of its agents.
